I. SCOPE OF ENGAGEMENT

1. I have been retained by Counsel for the Court-appointed Lead Plaintiffs¹ in the matter of In Re Wells Fargo & Company Securities Litigation to determine whether the common stock of Wells Fargo & Company (“Wells Fargo” or the “Company”) traded in an open, well-developed and efficient market (hereinafter referred to as “efficient market”) from May 30, 2018 through March 12, 2020, inclusive (the “Class Period”).² I have also been asked by Lead Plaintiffs to opine on whether the calculation of damages on a class-wide basis is subject to a common methodology for all Class members in connection with their claims under Section 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (the “Exchange Act”) and U.S. Securities & Exchange Commission (“SEC”) Rule 10b-5 adopted thereunder (collectively, “Section 10(b)").³

2. I have reviewed the Complaint and the MTD Order and assume the allegations sustained in the MTD Order are true for purposes of this report. It is my understanding that Lead Plaintiffs allege:

Defendants’ misstatements and omissions concerning the Bank’s compliance with the 2018 Consent Orders’ requirements artificially inflated the price of Wells Fargo stock.

² I note that the Complaint defines the proposed class period as February 2, 2018 through March 12, 2020. Consolidated Amended Class Action Complaint for Violations of the Federal Securities Laws, filed November 9, 2020 (ECF No. 74) (the “Complaint”), ¶270. I understand that Lead Plaintiffs are seeking certification of the class defined in footnote 3 supra in light of the Memorandum Opinion and Order, filed September 30, 2021 (ECF No. 96) (the “MTD Order”), which dismissed a statement made on February 2, 2018.

³ I understand that the proposed Class definition is: “All persons or entities who purchased or otherwise acquired the securities of Wells Fargo & Company (‘Wells Fargo’ or the ‘Bank’) between May 30, 2018 and March 12, 2020, inclusive (the ‘Class Period’), and were damaged thereby,” excluding “Defendants, officers and directors of Wells Fargo, Defendants’ immediate family members, legal representatives, heirs, successors or assigns, and any entity in which any Defendant has or had a controlling interest.” Memorandum Endorsed, filed September 12, 2022 (ECF No. 143).

I have been asked to opine solely on issues pertaining to Wells Fargo common stock.

The artificial inflation in Wells Fargo's stock price was removed when the conditions and risks misstated and omitted by Defendants and/or the materialization of the risks concealed by Defendants' material misstatements and omissions were revealed to the market. These disclosures and/or materializations divulged or revealed information through a series of partial disclosing events, which slowly corrected Defendants' prior misrepresentations and omissions and/or revealed facts about the nature and extent of Wells Fargo's deficiency in meeting the 2018 Consent Orders' requirements.⁴

3. My report applies widely accepted economic, financial, and statistical analyses to determine whether Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market. It is organized as follows: In Section II, I present my qualifications as an expert. In Section III, I summarize each of my opinions. In Section IV, I describe the concept of market efficiency. In Section V, I offer empirical support for the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market during the Class Period by examining the "operational" factors for demonstrating market efficiency set forth in Cammer v. Bloom, 711 F. Supp. 1264 (D.N.J. 1989) ("Cammer") and Krogman v. Sterritt, 202 F.R.D. 467, 474-78 (N.D. Tex. 2001) ("Krogman"). In Section VI, I review the results of statistical tests examining the behavior of Wells Fargo's stock price on earnings or guidance announcements dates collectively over the Class Period. These empirical analyses demonstrate that Wells Fargo common stock responded to new, Company-specific information, which also supports the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market during the Class Period. In Section VII, I show that the calculation of damages in this case can be done on a class-wide basis using a common methodology for Plaintiffs' claims under Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act. Section VIII states my conclusions.

⁴ Complaint, ¶237. The allegations are detailed in the Complaint, Section IV and the MTD, pp. 3-16.

II. QUALIFICATIONS

4. I am President of Hartzmark Economics Litigation Practice, LLC and prior to this I was a Principal and Director at Navigant Economics (formerly dba Chicago Partners, LLC, a subsidiary of Navigant Consulting, Inc.). Both firms specialize in the application of economics and finance to legal, commercial, and regulatory issues, including issues such as those addressed in this report. I also am currently engaged as an independent contractor by the Office of the Attorney General of the State of New Jersey and was previously engaged by the Office of the Attorney General of the State of New York.

5. I have served as a testifying and consulting expert in numerous securities class actions. In addition, I have published scholarly articles on a multitude of issues in financial economics including those associated with securities class actions, including the topic of market efficiency. I have spent much of my time as an economic consultant evaluating issues related to market efficiency, including its relation to the certification of securities class actions. My primary focus has been on securities such as common stock, corporate bonds, Treasury and energy futures, swaps, swaptions and options, and asset-backed securities. My expert reports, which included the topics of market efficiency and common damages methodology, have been cited with approval by the respective courts in N.J. Carpenters Health Fund v. Royal Bank of Scotland Group PLC,⁵ Laurence Rougier, et al.

⁵ N.J. Carpenters Health Fund v. Royal Bank of Scotland Group PLC, 2016 WL 7409840, at *10 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 4, 2016) (“Plaintiff’s expert proposes a ‘single, common methodology [that] draws upon three sources of price data in a single, formulaic manner.’”) (quoting my rebuttal report and certifying class for Securities Act claims; alteration in original); id. (“valuing the Certificates and calculating damages under the prescribed statutory formula may be a complicated inquiry, but it will not be excessively individual”).

Nov. 13, 2019) (“Plaintiffs’ proposed damages model comports with the requirements of Rule 23(b)(3) as set forth in Comcast Corp. v. Behrend, 569 U.S. 27 (2013)”), adopted, 2019 WL 7020349 (S.D. Tex. Dec. 20, 2019); id. (“Furthermore, courts recognize event studies, like the one used by Dr. Hartzmark, as an accepted method for determining artificial inflation and out-of-pocket damages in suits involving fraud on the market liability.”); id. at *17 (“Dr. Hartzmark’s report and supplemental report describe at length his method for calculating the ‘but for’ value of the stock, for disaggregating inflation or price fluctuations not related to the misrepresentations found by a jury, and how he would use the inflation ribbon to methodically calculate damages for each Class Member. Thus, unlike the plaintiffs in BP I, the Plaintiffs here have satisfied their burden to demonstrate a damages model that calculates artificial inflation, the but for price, and will disaggregate inflation unrelated to fraud. Also, as was the case for the post-explosion subclass the district court certified in BP II, there is no disconnect between Plaintiffs’ theory of liability and damages model in violation of Comcast.”) (citations omitted); id. at *18 (“As detailed above, Plaintiffs’ method for demonstrating class-wide damages is consistent with its fraud on the market theory of liability, Dr. Hartzmark proposes a damage methodology that will disaggregate losses not attributable to fraud found by the jury, and class certification under Rule 23(b)(3) will not violate Comcast.”); id. at *19 (“Plaintiffs have also proposed a damages methodology that is common to the class and is properly tethered to their corrective disclosure theory of liability.”).

⁷ Christakis Vrakas, et al. v. U.S. Steel Corp., et al., 2019 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 222783, at *21 (W.D. Pa. Dec. 31, 2019) (“Plaintiffs cite several cases in this Circuit and elsewhere that affirm the appropriateness of the out-of-pocket methodology that Dr. Hartzmark proposes as a sufficient damages model for class certification purposes.” (footnote omitted)).

Litig.*, 2019 WL 3001084, at *20 (S.D.N.Y. 2019) (“Signet”) (“Plaintiff’s burden at this stage is simply to propose a methodology for calculating damages that corresponds to its theory of liability. It has done so here. Dr. Hartzmark’s purports to ‘us[e] the results of an event study along with the disclosures of firm-specific information’ to measure ‘the level of artificial inflation in the prices of the Signet common stock’ based upon ‘price reactions to disclosures revealing [Defendants’] alleged misstatements and omissions.’ . . . ‘From this, daily levels of inflation can be calculated by adjusting the inflation measure for each day throughout the Class Period.’ This methodology, which applies on a class-wide basis, is capable of measuring the out-of-pocket losses suffered by the Class members.”).

Fund, et al. v. DFC Global Corp., et al.,⁹ In re Cobalt International Energy, Inc. Securities Litigation,¹⁰ and *William D. Wallace, et al. v. IntraLinks Holdings, Inc., et al.*¹¹ I also wrote a series of reports cited in the district court's opinion granting class certification of DVI common stock and corporate bonds in In re DVI, Inc. Securities Litigation, 249 F.R.D. 196 (E.D. Pa. 2008), which was affirmed by the Third Circuit in In re DVI, Inc. Securities Litigation, 639 F.3d 623 (3d Cir. 2011). I have also co-authored three law review publications discussing the commonly used empirical tests applicable to securities class actions.¹²

6. I earned my B.A. in economics from The University of Michigan and my M.A. and Ph.D. in economics from The University of Chicago. I have taught economics and financial economics in the Department of Economics at The University of Chicago and jointly in the Michigan Business School (now the Ross School of Business) and the Department of Economics at the University of Michigan.

7. At the University of Michigan, I created and taught courses on financial and commodity futures markets. While an Assistant Professor at the University of Michigan, I received a research grant from the University of Chicago Center for the Study of Futures Prices, as well as the John M. Olin Faculty Fellowship to further my research in financial markets. In addition, I published articles in peer-reviewed journals related to financial markets. Prior to my tenure track appointment at the University of Michigan, I was employed as a Financial Economist at the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, Division of Economics and Education.

8. I have been a holder of the Series 7 and 63 registered representative licenses and have served as a Financial Advisor at Fahnstock & Co., Inc. (now Oppenheimer & Co., Inc.). I was also founder and President of DARMA, LLC, a wealth and asset advisory company affiliated with Oppenheimer & Co., Inc.

9. My qualifications, publications, and expert engagements are summarized in detail in my curriculum vitae, which is attached to this report as Appendix A. Hartzmark Economics Litigation Practice, LLC is being compensated at my standard rate of $825 per hour for my work in this matter. Personnel working under my direction are being billed at hourly rates between $190 to $360 in this matter. My compensation is not dependent on my opinions expressed in this report or the outcome of this matter.

III. SUMMARY OF OPINIONS

10. Based on my analysis to date, I have formed the following opinions:

OPINION 1: An economic analysis of the factors typically used by courts to analyze market efficiency — including those set forth in Cammer and Krogman — supports the conclusion that throughout the Class Period Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market. These factors are consistent with the fundamental principles of economics and finance and academic research. The economic analyses, which employ commonly utilized and generally accepted statistical tests, demonstrate that Wells Fargo common stock rapidly responded to unanticipated and material Company-specific information consistent with efficient markets.

OPINION 2: The calculation of damages for violations of Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act alleged in this matter may be computed on a class-wide basis using broadly accepted methodologies that would be common to all Class members.

11. In reaching these opinions, I have relied upon various materials, which are listed in Appendix B and/or are otherwise cited in this report. The research and analysis upon which my opinions are based has been conducted by me with the assistance of personnel working under my direction and supervision. My conclusions are based on information available to me as of the date of this report. I understand that discovery is ongoing, and I may review, evaluate, and analyze relevant material that becomes available to me in the future. I reserve the right to modify my conclusions based on additional information.

IV. BASES FOR OPINIONS ON EFFICIENCY OF THE MARKET FOR WELLS FARGO COMMON STOCK

A. Efficient Market Defined

12. A market is defined as being informationally efficient if prices of securities trading in that market reflect all material, publicly available information.¹³ The notion behind efficient markets is that the competition among investors to discover new profit opportunities pushes security prices to reflect all material, publicly available information.

13. The finance literature supports the concept of market efficiency. The father of modern finance and Nobel Prize winner, Eugene Fama, wrote, “We shall conclude that, with but a few exceptions, the efficient markets model stands up well,”¹⁴ and “[i]n short, the evidence in support of the efficient markets model is extensive, and (somewhat uniquely in economics) contradictory evidence is sparse.”¹⁵ In 1991, Professor Fama updated his analysis and wrote, “The empirical literature on efficiency and asset-pricing models passes the acid test of scientific usefulness.”¹⁶ Professor Fama also wrote that “precise inferences about the degree of market efficiency are likely to remain impossible. Nevertheless, judged on how it has improved our understanding of the behavior of security returns, the past research on market efficiency is among the most successful in empirical economics, with good prospects to remain so in the future.”¹⁷

¹³ See Eugene F. Fama, Efficient Capital Markets: A Review of Theory and Empirical Work, 25 J. Fin., 383 (1970) (“A market in which prices always ‘fully reflect’ available information is called ‘efficient’”); Eugene F. Fama, Efficient Capital Markets: II, 46 J. Fin., 1575 (1991) (“I take the market efficiency hypothesis to be the simple statement that security prices fully reflect all available information.”).

¹⁴ Fama, Efficient Capital Markets: A Review of Theory and Empirical Work, 25 J. Fin. at 383.

14. The opinion in Cammer articulated five factors used by courts to evaluate whether a market is efficient for the purposes of establishing the presumption of investor reliance articulated by the Supreme Court in Basic Inc. v. Levinson, 485 U.S. 224 (1988). The fundamental principles of economics and finance that underlie a large body of academic research published over the past forty years support each factor as an indicator of market efficiency. As explained below, it is important to understand that assessment of market efficiency does not turn on any one single factor; rather, it is an assessment of all the factors together that allows one to determine whether the market for a security is efficient.¹⁸ For ease of comprehension, the factors can be separated into two general categories: “operational factors” and “price-related factors.”

B. Operational Factors Employed to Evaluate Whether a Security Trades in an Efficient Market

15. The operational factors examine the trading and arbitrage activity in the market, with the clear understanding that an efficient market (a) is one in which anyone Malkiel, The Efficient Market Hypothesis and Its Critics, 17 J. Econ. Perspectives 59 (2003).

¹⁸ Nor is it necessary to show support from every factor. See, Waggoner v. Barclays PLC, 875 F.3d 79, 98 (2d Cir. 2017), cert. denied, 138 S. Ct. 1702, (2018) (“Waggoner”). can buy and sell securities; (b) is one that has a high level of trading activity, and for which trading information is readily available; and (c) can be characterized as a liquid market that can absorb a reasonable amount of trading volume at relatively low trading costs.¹⁹ Thus, the courts when analyzing these factors primarily focus on the question of whether a security trades in an open and well-developed market,²⁰ with the clear understanding that (a) an open capital market is one in which anyone can buy and sell securities; (b) a developed capital market is one that has a high level of trading activity, and for which trading information is readily available; and (c) a developed capital market can be characterized as a liquid market that can absorb a reasonable amount of trading volume at relatively low trading costs. As a result, the operational factors are primarily used to examine whether there is sufficient trading and arbitrage activity, along with widespread information dissemination, such that it can reasonably be expected that the market price for the security rapidly reflects new information.²¹

16. The operational factors set forth in Cammer are:

“Indeed, nearly every court that has considered the proposition has concluded that where materially misleading statements have been disseminated into an impersonal, well-developed market for securities, the reliance of individual plaintiffs on the integrity of the market price may be presumed.” Basic, 485 U.S. at 247.

- (1) average weekly turnover;²²
- (2) analyst coverage;²³
- (3) number of market makers or dealers of the security, along with arbitrageurs;²⁴ and
- (4) the issuer's eligibility to file SEC Form S-3 and to incorporate by reference other SEC Forms.²⁵

Related to arbitrage activity, some courts have also suggested that other factors may be relevant to determining whether a market is efficient for class-certification purposes, including the activity and number of institutional investors. For example, in In re Enron Corporation Securities, Derivative & “ERISA” Litigation, 529 F. Supp. 2d 644, 756 (S.D. Tex. 2006), the court decided that the Enron bonds traded in efficient markets partially based on “data on institutional holdings . . . [that] there was active trading . . . during the Class Period, [and] there were a substantial number of institutional investors.”

“Consistent with the efficiency indicators used recently by the courts, the inefficient firms have lower mean trading volume, fewer market makers, lower analyst following, and lower institutional ownership (number and percentage) than efficient firms.” Brad M. Barber, Paul A. Griffin, and Baruch Lev, The Fraud-on-the-Market Theory and the Indicators of Common Stocks' Efficiency, 19 J. Corp. L., 285-312, 302 (Winter 1994) (footnote omitted).

²⁵ “... [I]t would be helpful to allege the Company was entitled to file an S-3 Registration Statement in connection with public offerings or, if ineligible, such ineligibility was only because of timing factors rather than because the minimum stock requirements set

17. The court in Krogman suggested three additional operational factors:

- (1) the market capitalization;²⁶
- (2) the bid-ask price spread;²⁷ and
- (3) the float (i.e., the amount of outstanding security not held by insiders of the corporation).²⁸

C. Price-Related Factors Employed to Evaluate Whether a Security Trades in an Efficient Market

18. The price-related factors are used to examine whether the market price for the security rapidly reflects new, unanticipated information as would be expected in an efficient market.

19. To examine the market efficiency of Wells Fargo common stock, I test whether:

forth in the instructions to Form S-3 were not met.” Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1287. See also id. at 1271 n.5 (“Generally speaking, it is the largest and most well-known companies which register equity securities on Form S-3”); id. at 1284 (quoting SEC Securities Act Release No. 6235, 45 FR 63,693 (1980)) (“This form [S-3] is predicated on the Commission’s belief that the market operates efficiently for these companies, i.e., that the disclosure in Exchange Act reports and other communications by the registrant, such as press releases, has already been disseminated and accounted for by the market place.”) (emphasis omitted).

²⁸ Insiders cannot freely trade in the stock of their firm based on their privileged, nonpublic information. They are subject to both trading restrictions (blackout periods, and restrictions of Rule 10b-5 and Exchange Act Sections 16(b) and 16(c)) and the reporting requirements of Section 16(a). See 17 C.F.R. § 240.10b-5 (2011); 15 U.S.C. §§ 78p(b), 78p(c), 78p(a) (2011). “In determining efficiency, courts also consider the percentage of shares held by the public, rather than insiders.” Krogman, 202 F.R.D. at 478.

- (1) there is a rapid price reaction to new information relevant to the valuation of the common stock;²⁹ and
- (2) there are certain statistical properties associated with share price movements, such as the lack of autocorrelation.³⁰

D. Evaluating the Operational and Price-Related Factors

20. Professor Fama’s conclusion that “precise inferences about the degree of market efficiency are likely to remain impossible,” as well as other academic research in economics and finance, support an approach whereby the above factors should be used as a basket of indicators of the efficiency of the security. But, as previously noted, it is by no means necessary that each factor in that basket specifically offer support. Judicial analysis of market efficiency reflects this recognition. For instance, the Second Circuit held that market efficiency may be demonstrated where the operational factors support that conclusion, even if the price-related factors do not.³¹ In so holding, the Second Circuit noted, “The Cammer and Krogman factors are simply tools to help district courts analyze market efficiency in determining whether the Basic presumption of reliance applies in class certification decision-making. But they are no more than tools in arriving at that

³⁰ “Autocorrelation is usually found in time-series data. Economic time series often display a ‘memory’ in that variation is not independent from one period to the next.” William H. Greene, Econometric Analysis (Prentice Hall, 2d ed. 1993) at 358. In other words, autocorrelation is the measurement of the relationship between the security return at time t and the return of the same security at some fixed time in the past. First-order autocorrelation would be found when there is a statistically significant relationship between the common stock return today and the common stock return yesterday. Another way of looking at this concept is that if an observer can use the return from yesterday to predict with some level of certainty the return today, there exists autocorrelation. The absence of autocorrelation is an indicator of market efficiency. See Lehocky v. Tidel Techs., Inc., 220 F.R.D. 491, 506-07 n.20 (S.D. Tex. 2004) (noting that both parties’ experts agreed on the helpfulness of an autocorrelation analysis).

conclusion, and certain factors will be more helpful than others in assessing particular securities and particular markets for efficiency.”³²

21. In forming my opinion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period, I have considered these operational and price-related factors as a group or a basket of indicia.

V. ANALYSIS OF OPERATIONAL FACTORS OF WELLS FARGO COMMON STOCK

A. Cammer Operational Factors

1. Cammer Factor I – Average Weekly Trading Volume

22. The first operational factor is the average weekly turnover of a security. As discussed in the Cammer opinion: “Turnover measured by average weekly trading of two percent or more of the outstanding shares would justify a strong presumption that the market for the security is an efficient one; one percent would justify a substantial presumption.”³³ A high trading volume indicates substantial investor interest in the security, and thus increases the likelihood that newly available public and private information will be rapidly incorporated in the security price through trading.³⁴ In addition, high volume suggests the possibility that investors will, all other factors staying constant, be able to reap greater profits from any information they may possess because they can more easily participate in the market. This greater profit opportunity from the information they may possess then encourages investors to make greater investments in information gathering and processing. This, in turn, will enhance the informational efficiency of the market.³⁵

23. To reliably determine whether the turnover fulfills the Cammer criterion, I calculated average weekly turnover over the Class Period, which is equal to the average of the ratio of weekly volume divided by the shares outstanding for that week.³⁶ Exhibit I contains the results of this analysis and shows that there were on average approximately 4.5 billion shares of Wells Fargo common stock outstanding during the Class Period and a total of 9.6 billion shares traded hands. The average weekly volume was 103.8 million shares and the average of the ratio of weekly volume to Wells Fargo shares outstanding was 2.3% – more than the 2% threshold that Cammer held “would justify a strong presumption that the market for the security is an efficient one”³⁷ – and the median was 2.1%.³⁸ This analysis therefore “justif[ies] a strong presumption that the market for the security is an efficient one.”³⁹

24. In addition, in a recently published paper, the authors calculated average daily turnover over 2016-2018 for all NYSE and NASDAQ stocks. For comparison purposes, the weekly turnover of Wells Fargo shares during the Class Period would have placed it between the 25th and 50th percentiles of NYSE and NASDAQ traded companies.⁴⁰

I calculate daily average turnover for Wells Fargo as the weekly average divided by 5, which equals 0.46%. I note that BST 2020 provides summary statistics for various time periods ending in 2018. I consider summary

25. Not only is the average weekly turnover for Wells Fargo shares above the level that supports a “strong presumption” of efficiency under Cammer, but the average and median weekly turnover measures here are comparable to or greater than the turnover measures calculated in other litigation where the courts found the common stock to trade in an efficient market.⁴¹ The relatively high average weekly turnover of Wells Fargo shares provides strong evidence supporting the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

2. Cammer Factor II – Analyst Coverage

26. The second operational factor is the number of securities analysts who followed and reported on Wells Fargo’s common stock. As discussed in Cammer: “It would be persuasive to allege a significant number of securities analysts followed and reported on a company’s stock during the class period.”⁴² As more analysts follow and report on a company’s securities, more information about the company is disseminated to a greater number of investors. The presence of such professionals means that more information is likely to be reflected in the price of these securities, either through increased trading or simply through revaluation of the securities by the market participants.⁴³

Inc.; Piper Sandler Companies; Raymond James & Associates; RBC Capital Markets; Susquehanna Financial Group LLLP; UBS; and Wolfe Research, LLC.⁴⁴ Wells Fargo was also covered by debt ratings agencies DBRS Morningstar and Moody's. There were 23 additional technical or analyst firms that covered Wells Fargo and reported results.⁴⁵ In total, there were at least 45 analysts (including the ratings agencies, DBRS Morningstar and Moody's) reporting on Wells Fargo. See Exhibit II-A for a listing of the number of reports during the Class Period from these analysts. This exhibit shows that there were 812 reports on Wells Fargo published during the Class Period from these analysts.

28. The coverage of Wells Fargo's common stock by analysts can also be observed in analyst participation in conference calls held by Wells Fargo. Many of these analysts participated in the regular earnings calls Wells Fargo hosted in conjunction with the release of its quarterly financial results throughout the Class Period. Wells Fargo held seven earnings conference calls during the Class Period and two additional calls regarding announcements pertaining to Wells Fargo's CEO and President.⁴⁶ On these conference

calls, analysts and other investors were able to ask questions about Wells Fargo, with an average of 10 analysts who actively asked questions on each call. See Exhibit II-B for a list of analysts who asked questions on these conference calls. There were also 17 investor conferences hosted by analysts and 17 industry conferences during the Class Period at which Wells Fargo participated. See Exhibit II-C for a list of these investor conferences during the Class Period. Further, as recorded by Bloomberg, during the Class Period there was an average of 34 research analysts following the Company⁴⁷ and there was an average of 23 analysts that were part of the Refinitiv I/B/E/S consensus EPS estimate for the current fiscal year.⁴⁸ See Exhibit II-D. In addition, based on 2016-2018 data in BST 2020, Wells Fargo's analyst coverage (based on Refinitiv data) during the Class Period would place it between the 90th and 95th percentiles of all NYSE and NASDAQ stocks.⁴⁹

29. In addition to the analyst reports, there were numerous press releases, news stories and other media coverage of Wells Fargo throughout the 653 calendar days of the Class Period (450 trading days, or days when the U.S. stock market is open for the buying and selling of common stock) (see Appendix C for a chronology of information releases).⁵⁰ I found approximately 26,300 articles (including over 3,100 articles from Bloomberg (Bloomberg News or Bloomberg First Word⁵¹) and over 23,100 articles from Factiva⁵²) that discussed Wells Fargo.

30. The continuous coverage of Wells Fargo by analysts provides substantial evidence supporting the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

3. Cammer Factor III – Market Makers and Arbitrageurs

31. The next operational factor is the presence of market makers and arbitrageurs. As discussed in Cammer, “[t]he existence of market makers and arbitrageurs would ensure completion of the market mechanism; these individuals would react swiftly to company news and reported financial results by buying or selling stock and driving it to a changed price level.”⁵³

32. As explained below, consideration of this factor supports a finding of market efficiency for Wells Fargo common stock because: (a) the stock was listed on NYSE; (b) was actively traded by a large group of sophisticated investors;⁵⁴ and (c) there were opportunities for arbitrage.⁵⁵

a) Trading on NYSE

33. Wells Fargo was listed on the NYSE during the Class Period.⁵⁶ The NYSE does not utilize market makers, but instead assigns a Designated Market Maker (DMM) to each security traded on the NYSE.⁵⁷ The NYSE uses these well-capitalized DMMs to facilitate fair and orderly trading.⁵⁸ The structure of the NYSE, including the DMM system, in combination with the requirements for being listed,⁵⁹ leads to the presumption by economists and the courts that common stocks traded on the NYSE trade in an efficient market.⁶⁰ As Cammer itself explained,

The cornerstone of the NYSE market model is the Designated Market Maker (DMM). DMMs have obligations to maintain fair and orderly markets for their assigned securities. They operate both manually and electronically to facilitate price discovery during market opens, closes and during periods of trading imbalances or instability. This high-touch approach is crucial for offering the best prices, dampening volatility, adding liquidity and enhancing value.

DMMs apply their market experience and judgment of dynamic trading conditions, macroeconomic news and industry-specific intelligence, to inform their decisions. A valuable resource for our listed-company community, DMMs offer insights, while making capital commitments, maintaining market integrity, and supporting price discovery.

“In most cases, evidence that a stock trades at high volumes on a large national market, such as the NYSE or NASDAQ, and is followed by a large number of analysts will be sufficient to satisfy the Basic presumption on class certification.” Carpenters Pension Tr. Fund of St. Louis v. Barclays PLC, 310 F.R.D. 69, 84 (S.D.N.Y. 2015) (footnote omitted).

“While other courts have been reluctant to conclude that a stock was traded efficiently solely because it was traded on the NYSE or NASDAQ, most courts agree that such listing is a good indicator of efficiency.” Id. at 81. “[T]hat CSC has cited no case, and

We think that, at a minimum, there should be a presumption – probably conditional for class determination – that certain markets are developed and efficient for virtually all the securities traded there: the New York and American Stock Exchanges, the Chicago Board Options Exchange and the NASDAQ National Market System.⁶¹

34. Therefore, the fact that Wells Fargo was listed on the NYSE provides substantial evidence that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

b) Arbitrageurs and Institutional Holdings

35. As noted above, some courts have also considered the number and activity of institutional investors, as well as the proportion of their holdings of the common stock as evidence of market efficiency.⁶² Exhibit III lists 3,116 institutions that filed SEC Form 13F and other documents, disclosing the combined sizes of their beneficial and non-beneficial ownership positions of Wells Fargo common stock for any quarter within the Class Period.⁶³ These data show that “there was active trading . . . during the Class Period, none has been found, holding that the NYSE is not an efficient market for shares of common stock traded, as here, in substantial volumes.” In re Computer Sciences Corp. Securities Litig., 288 F.R.D. 112, 119 (E.D. Va. 2012). The court emphasized this point further: “It is not surprising that no other federal courts have concluded that common shares traded on the NYSE are not traded in an efficient market.” Id. at 120.

“[T]he federal courts are unanimous in their agreement that a listing on the NASDAQ or a similar national market is a good indicator of efficiency.” Vinh Nguyen vs. Radiant Pharm. Corp., 287 F.R.D. 563, 573 n.7 (C.D. Cal. 2012) (internal quotations omitted).

⁶³ For securities traded on major U.S. exchanges, such as the NYSE, NASDAQ and AMEX, S&P Capital IQ gathers institutional ownership information via Form 13F filings and other sources. For 13F filings, the SEC’s rules state: “Institutional investment managers that use the United States mail (or other means or instrumentality of interstate commerce) in the course of their business and that exercise investment discretion over $100 million or more in Section 13(f) securities must file Form 13F. . . . An institutional investment manager is an entity that either invests in, or buys and sells, securities for its own account. For example, banks, insurance companies, and broker/dealers are institutional investment managers. So are corporations and pension

[and] there were a substantial number of institutional investors,”⁶⁴ including a large group of sophisticated investors, institutional investors and investment advisors, who participated in the market for Wells Fargo common stock, either on their own behalf or on behalf of other beneficial owners. Further, the top 20 largest institutional holders of Wells Fargo common stock (in terms of the size of their Wells Fargo common stock holdings) as of June 30, 2018, December 31, 2018, June 30, 2019, or December 31, 2019 held a large proportion of the public float (I also report the position relative to outstanding shares). See Exhibit IV. This exhibit shows that the aggregate positions held by these 27 institutions was between 1.70 billion and 2.06 billion shares of Wells Fargo common stock, or between 39% and 42% of the public float as of the listed dates. In addition, based on 2016-2018 data in BST 2020, Wells Fargo’s institutional ownership as a percent of shares during the Class Period would have placed it between the 50th and 75th percentiles of NYSE and NASDAQ traded companies.⁶⁵

36. The reasonably large number of sophisticated institutional investors and investment advisors, as well as the large proportion of the float they held, offers further funds that manage their own investment portfolios. An institutional investment manager is also a natural person or an entity that exercises investment discretion over the account of any other natural person or entity. For example, an investment adviser that manages private accounts, mutual fund assets, or pension plan assets is an institutional investment manager. So is the trust department of a bank. A trustee is an institutional investment manager, but a natural person who exercises investment discretion over his or her own account is not an institutional investment manager.” U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission: Division of Investment Management: Frequently Asked Questions About Form 13F, February 24, 2020, <http://www.sec.gov/divisions/investment/13ffaq.htm> (last visited September 28, 2022).

support that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.⁶⁶

c) Arbitrage Opportunities and Short Interest

37. Some courts have also examined the issue of arbitrage opportunities by considering whether there is an availability of shares to borrow in order to enter into a short sale.⁶⁷ Short selling enables market participants to trade on their perceived negative information about the company even if they do not hold a long position in the stock. Thus, short selling assists in arbitrage activity when it is believed by investors that the stock is possibly mispriced and too high. Short selling activity can therefore improve market efficiency because it enables all traders who believe the price is going to decline, even if they do not hold a long position, to sell and possibly affect market prices.

38. The amount of short interest in Wells Fargo common stock during the Class Period ranged from 19.7 million shares to 45.2 million shares, with an average short interest of 31.1 million shares. As a percentage of shares outstanding, short interest ranged from 0.4% to 1.1% and, as a percentage of public float, short interest also ranged from 0.4% to 1.1%. See Exhibit V. In addition, based on 2016-2018 data in BST 2020, Wells Fargo's average short interest as a percent of shares outstanding during the Class Period (0.7%) would have placed it between the 10th and 25th percentiles of NYSE and NASDAQ traded companies.⁶⁸

39. These levels and the range of short interest support the conclusion that arbitrageurs and traders with negative views on Wells Fargo were able to remain active,

⁶⁶ See supra note 24. Other courts have noted the level of institutional investors in assessing market efficiency. See, e.g., In re Alstom SA Sec. Litig., 253 F.R.D. 266, 280 (S.D.N.Y. 2008); City of Ann Arbor Emps' Ret. Sys. v. Sonoco Prods. Co., 270 F.R.D. 247, 251 (D.S.C. 2010); *Billhofer v. which offers further evidence that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

4. Cammer Factor IV – SEC Form S-3 Eligibility

40. Eligibility to register securities on SEC Form S-3 is another factor courts evaluate when examining market efficiency.⁶⁹ To be eligible to register on Form S-3, an issuer must (a) be current in its SEC filings for at least 12 months and (b) have a public float of at least $75 million.⁷⁰

41. At all times throughout the Class Period, Wells Fargo was current with its SEC filings. In addition, at all times throughout the Class Period, Wells Fargo easily met the public float requirement. Indeed, on average, Wells Fargo's public float was more than 3,000 times the required threshold. Wells Fargo therefore met these eligibility requirements that are indicative of an efficient market. Indeed, Wells Fargo filed automatic shelf registrations on Form S-3, S-3/A or S-3ASR during the Class Period on January 29, 2020 and February 12, 2020.⁷¹

42. Thus, this Cammer factor provides further evidence supporting the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

⁶⁹ “Fourth, as discussed, it would be helpful to allege the Company was entitled to file an S-3 Registration Statement in connection with public offerings or, if ineligible, such ineligibility was only because of timing factors rather than because the minimum stock requirements set forth in the instructions to Form S-3 were not met.” Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1287.

⁷⁰ SEC 1379, “Form S-3, Registration Statement under the Securities Act of 1933, General Instructions,” updated November 2018, at 3.

⁷¹ Source: SEC EDGAR database. Outside of the Class Period, Wells Fargo also filed Forms S-3, S-3/A S-3ASR on February 24, 2017, November 3, 2017, March 8, 2018, June 8, 2020 and July 17, 2020. In addition, as a public company, Wells Fargo was required to file numerous information disclosures in SEC forms that contain new and possibly material information (e.g., 10-K, 10-Q, Proxy and Registration forms) and others that were related to material changes in the Company (e.g., Form 8-K).

B. Additional Operational Factors

43. In addition to the operational Cammer factors evaluated above, I have also considered additional operational factors set forth in Krogman that have sometimes been considered by courts to analyze market efficiency. As with the operational Cammer factors, these additional operational factors provide substantial support for my conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

1. Krogman Factor – Market Capitalization

44. In Krogman, the court stated that “[m]arket capitalization, calculated as the number of shares multiplied by the prevailing share price, may be an indicator of market efficiency because there is a greater incentive for stock purchasers to invest in more highly capitalized corporations.”⁷²

45. At the start of the Class Period, Wells Fargo’s market capitalization was $264.3 billion, and its peak market capitalization during the Class Period was $285.1 billion.⁷³ Throughout the Class Period, the market capitalization of Wells Fargo averaged approximately $227.6 billion. Exhibit VI shows Wells Fargo’s market capitalization during the Class Period.

46. Wells Fargo’s market capitalization compares favorably to the market capitalization of defendant companies in other cases where the courts concluded that the common stock traded in efficient markets. Indeed, courts have certified classes involving issuer-defendants with significantly lower market capitalizations than Wells Fargo.⁷⁴ In addition, based on 2016-2018 data in BST 2020, Wells Fargo's average market capitalization during the Class Period would have placed it above the 95th percentile of NYSE and NASDAQ traded companies.⁷⁵

2. Krogman Factor – The Size of the Float of Wells Fargo Common Stock

47. Float or public float refers to the number of shares of Wells Fargo common stock that are not held by insiders of the corporation.⁷⁶ Consequently, a larger float relative to the total number of outstanding shares of Wells Fargo common stock indicates there is a large proportion of Wells Fargo shares that is available to non-insiders who can trade without restrictions and profit by trading on new information to the marketplace. This lack of restriction to trade enhances the flow of information and the efficiency of the market.

48. On average, insiders held 2.4 million or 0.1% of the shares outstanding during the Class Period.⁷⁷ The public float was thus, on average, approximately 99.9% of Wells Fargo's shares during the Class Period. The proportion of Wells Fargo shares held by the of DVI during the Class Period ranged between $300 million to $12 million, following DVI's negative disclosures."); Nguyen v. Radient, 287 F.R.D. 563, 574 (C.D. Cal. 2012) ("The value of stock held by non-affiliates ranged from $29.5 million to $73.1 million during the Class Period."); The Pennsylvania Avenue Funds v. Inyx Inc., 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 72999, *28 (S.D.N.Y. 2011) ("the market capitalization was consistently in excess of $22.4 million throughout the Class Period")

⁷⁵ BST 2020 at Table 5, p. 107. The range of Wells Fargo's market capitalization over the Class Period would place it over the 95th percentile of NYSE and NASDAQ traded companies. I note that BST 2020 provides summary statistics for various time periods ending in 2018. I consider summary statistics for the provided sub-period of 2016 through 2018 to be reasonable proxies to serve as benchmarks for the Class Period.

⁷⁷ Insider holdings were obtained for directors and officers as a group from Wells Fargo SEC filings. See SEC Forms DEF 14A filed on March 14, 2018 (p. 55), March 13, 2019 (p. 59), and March 16, 2020 (p. 48).

public offers additional substantial support for the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.⁷⁸

3. Krogman Factor – Bid-Ask Spread

49. The size of the bid-ask spread is calculated as the ask price (quoted by a prospective buyer at the value he or she is willing to pay) minus the bid price (quoted by a prospective seller at the value he or she is willing to accept). The bid-ask spread is considered an indicia or measure of the liquidity in the market or, in other words, the cost to quickly enter or exit the market. For this reason, courts have considered it as a factor in determining whether the security trades in an efficient market. In Krogman, the court stated that, “[a] large bid-ask spread is indicative of an inefficient market, because it suggests that the stock is too expensive to trade.”⁷⁹

50. Here, the low bid-ask spread for Wells Fargo common stock supports market efficiency. Using daily closing bid and ask quotes, I calculated the percent bid-ask spread for Wells Fargo common stock. The percent bid-ask spread was calculated as (i) the ask quote less the bid quote divided by (ii) the average of the bid and ask quotes. Exhibit VII contains the results of the bid-ask spread analysis for each day of the Class Period. The average daily percent spread for Wells Fargo common stock was 0.02% over the Class Period. The daily average spread was 1 cent, and thus provides substantial evidence of market efficiency as the market for Wells Fargo common stock was highly liquid, open to all interested investors, and well-developed.

51. These numbers compare favorably to the findings of the courts in other cases where the courts concluded that the common stocks traded in efficient markets.⁸⁰ In ⁷⁸ In Cammer, the court found that a public float of between 63% and 68% was supportive for an open, developed and efficient market. 711 F. Supp at 1283 n.30; see also McIntire v. China MediaExpress, 38 F. Supp. 3d. 415, 433 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) (“insiders owned between 57 percent and 69 percent of the shares outstanding” consistent “with a finding of market efficiency”).

⁷⁹ Krogman, 202 F.R.D. at 478.

⁸⁰ See Radiant, 287 F.R.D. 563, 574 (finding a much larger bid-ask spread of 0.58 percent supported market efficiency); In re Scientific-Atlanta, 571 F. Supp. 2d 1315, 1339 (N.D. Ga. 2007) (finding that a bid-ask spread that “never exceeded 1.9%” weighed addition, based on 2016-2018 data in BST 2020, Wells Fargo's bid-ask spread during the Class Period would have placed it below the 25th percentile of NYSE and NASDAQ traded companies. In other words, Wells Fargo's bid-ask spread was narrower than 75% of the common stocks traded on the NYSE and NASDAQ during the 2016-2018 period (both the 5th and 10th percentile had the same bid-ask spread as Wells Fargo's average spread of 0.02%).⁸¹

52. The small size of the bid-ask spread is strong evidence offering support for the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

53. In sum, all of the operational factors offer substantial support for my opinion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market during the Class Period.

VI. ANALYSIS OF THE PRICE-RELATED FACTORS DESCRIBING MARKET EFFICIENCY OF WELLS FARGO COMMON STOCK

A. Background

54. What is often referred to as the fifth Cammer factor is “a cause and effect relationship between unexpected corporate events or financial releases and an immediate response in the stock price.”⁸² As stated in Cammer, “[o]ne of the most convincing ways to demonstrate [market] efficiency would be to illustrate, over time, a cause and effect relationship between company disclosures and resulting movements in stock price.”⁸³ As the Krogman court also noted, “in an efficient market, a stock's price remains relatively heavily in favor of market efficiency); Cheney v. Cyberguard Corp., 213 F.R.D. 484, 501 (S.D. Fla. 2003) (finding that average daily relative bid-ask spread of 2.44% weighed in favor of market efficiency).

stable in the absence of news, and changes very rapidly as the market receives new and unexpected information.”⁸⁴

55. Below I present empirical evidence that Wells Fargo common stock exhibits the type of cause-and-effect relationship described in Cammer and Krogman, supporting a conclusion of market efficiency. First, I examine the relationship between Wells Fargo common stock price movements on “news” days in comparison to “non-news” days, where news days are defined as disclosures of information about Wells Fargo’s earnings or guidance. Next, I demonstrate that there is no persistent and systematic autocorrelation of Wells Fargo common stock abnormal returns.⁸⁵ This demonstrates that Wells Fargo common stock price reacted quickly to all types of material, unanticipated news. Overall, the empirical results presented below support the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

B. Price Reaction to Unexpected New Information

1. Event Study Methodology Used to Test for Cause and Effect

56. To detect whether the price of Wells Fargo common stock rapidly reacted to disclosures of material, new information, I ran a series of empirical tests using the results from an event study. Event studies are widely used in academia, securities litigation matters and investment practices, and have been a standard statistical procedure used by financial economists for over 40 years. They are generally used to measure the reaction of market participants (and thus the stock price) to the disclosure of new information. In an event study, generally-accepted statistical methods are used to test whether a stock price movement on a particular date is statistically significant – i.e., is of a large enough magnitude to allow a statistician to conclude it is not the consequence of chance.

⁸⁴ Krogman, 202 F.R.D. at 477.

57. As is explained in detail in Appendix D, to measure the level of statistical significance of Wells Fargo’s stock price movement on any given date, I use generally accepted econometric methods and specify a regression model that removes the outside influences on the stock price movement. I then compare the remaining or residual firm-specific portion of the stock price movement on the date in question to the typical or normal volatility of the company’s stock.

58. Finally, as is typical in event studies performed in the context of class certification, I examine the relationship between the magnitudes of the abnormal returns, the levels of statistical significance of those abnormal returns, and the unexpected news related to the subject company. In Appendix C, I present a portion of the voluminous daily chronology of company news, along with Wells Fargo common stock prices, returns, volumes, abnormal returns and levels of statistical significance. This chronology of company news also demonstrates the depth of the media coverage of Wells Fargo.^{86,87} The abnormal returns and the measures of statistical significance are used in the analyses below.

⁸⁷ For the Wells Fargo chronology, I compiled lists of SEC filings, analyst reports, and news articles. I compiled the list of all of Wells Fargo SEC filings from May 30, 2018 to March 12, 2020 from the SEC website. The list of analyst reports is based on reports available from the Refinitiv and Capital IQ electronic databases. For news articles contained in the chronology, I searched Factiva. Due to the extensive media coverage, I include in the chronology only stories for the following sources obtained from Factiva

2. Cause and Effect Analysis Examining Days with News – Background

59. In an efficient market, each disclosure of unanticipated material information will be expected to have an impact on the security price. This is why the Cammer court concluded, “[I]t would be helpful to a plaintiff seeking to allege an efficient market to allege empirical facts showing a cause and effect relationship between unexpected corporate events or financial releases and an immediate response in the stock price.”⁸⁸ In securities litigation, the event study for a single firm as described in detail in Appendix D examines the impact on stock prices from a confluence of different types of information that is disclosed and disseminated. It is not unusual that over a class period a corporation will announce earnings, dividends, discoveries, new products, management changes, new issues of securities, lawsuits that it files, lawsuits filed against it, projections, regulatory changes that impact its business, and more.

60. In an efficient market, academic research finds that there will be some large price movements with no news,⁸⁹ and conversely, that there will be news without large

To eliminate duplicate stories, a news story was considered a duplicate and eliminated if it had exactly the same date, timestamp, headline, news source, and lead paragraph as another news story.

⁸⁸ Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1287.

⁸⁹ For example, in a 2002 study of the general stock market, Professor Fair observed that in the 4,417 trading days for the S&P 500 Index there were 220 days with abnormal returns. Of these days with significant returns, only 69 days had identifiable events or news. Thus, only 31.4 percent of the days had identifiable news, while 68.6 percent had no identifiable event or news. Notably, Professor Fair did not conclude that the S&P 500 stocks traded in inefficient markets. See Ray Fair, Events That Shook the Market, 75 Jnl. of Bus. 713, 714 (2002).

This result is also consistent with other studies, including an analysis that examined return predictability following large price changes and information releases. In this study, the authors looked at all common stocks traded on the NYSE and AMEX from 1990 to 1992 and observed 23,459 events with large abnormal returns (i.e., days for one or more stocks with large price movements). After employing certain defined data filters, the final sample included 4,873 events. They found, “Approximately one-third of the events had public announcements.” Mahesh Pritamani and Vijay Singal, Return price movements. On the latter point, for example, there will be news without large price movements when a company announces earnings that are in line with expectations and the announcement may be important to investors, but the mix of information would not have changed substantively, so as to elicit a stock price reaction that is outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance. Similarly, when a company's disclosure misleads investors by concealing important information, the effect of the concealment would generally not result in a stock price movement that is outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance. The concealment "news" would maintain the mix of information, so the appropriate price reaction would be a maintenance of the price level where it previously was.

61. Furthermore, there are unobserved factors that might lead to price movements without news that are outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance. These factors include, among others, unobserved changes in the market's expectations, imperfections in the statistical methods employed to evaluate the systematic cause-and-effect relationships of a single firm over a given period of time, and private trading activity — for example, insider trading, trading in advance of an offering or portfolio rebalancing. These factors all might drive a large price response without an observed cause.

62. Below I present empirical evidence that demonstrates that Wells Fargo common stock exhibits the type of cause-and-effect relationship described in Cammer and Krogman, supporting a conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market. I first examine the relationship between Wells Fargo common stock price movements on days when there are company announcements related to earnings or guidance. On days on which there are these announcements, these disclosures typically (although not always) communicate to the market valuation information, which is considered to be material.⁹⁰ Whether the material information disclosed on these days is unanticipated or anticipated will, in an efficient market, be reflected in the price movements (or lack thereof) observed on the day or days that follow. When selecting events for inclusion in an event study, it is that group of events as a whole that is characterized as having greater likelihood that there is material, unanticipated information that is disclosed as compared to all other days. One would not necessarily expect all of the individual events in a collective event study to have statistically significant returns.⁹¹ As will be discussed below, in a collective event study, statistical tests examine whether the incidence rate of returns that are outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance (which in this analysis I will consider to be those abnormal returns that are statistically significant at or below the 5% level) is greater on high information flow (or “news”) days than the incidence rate on lesser information flow (or “no-news”) days.

Predictability Following Large Price Changes and Information Releases, 25 Jnl. of Banking & Fin. 631, 635-636 (2001).

⁹⁰ For example, there is voluminous academic literature examining price responses to earnings releases. The pioneering work was completed by William H. Beaver, The Information Content of Annual Earnings Announcements, 6 Jnl. of Acctg. Res. 67

63. I use earnings or guidance disclosure dates because a company’s financial results and forecasts are among the most important considerations market participants utilize in valuing the company’s common stock. While not every earnings or guidance announcement communicates new, unexpected, and material information, the academic and trade literature in finance notes that unanticipated material information is more frequently and more systematically disclosed on such announcement dates rather than on other dates. Indeed, earnings and guidance announcement dates are a highly studied area of the academic research related to news and price movements. Moreover, the use of collective tests comparing price movements on news days to lesser or no-news days is widely used to assess market efficiency throughout a class period.

64. Accordingly, in order to objectively select “news dates” for use in my collective analysis, I examined dates on which Wells Fargo announced earnings or guidance and compared Wells Fargo common stock price movement on those dates to its movement on all other dates in the Class Period.

(1968). See also Daniella Acker, Implied Standard Deviations and Post-Earnings Announcement Volatility, 29 J. of Bus., Fin. and Acctg. 429 (2002).

⁹¹ See supra note 89.

3. Cause and Effect Analysis Examining Days with News Versus All Other Days

65. I take all 450 trading dates within the Class Period and categorized each date based on: (i) the observed relationships between the statistical significance/insignificance of the abnormal returns; and (ii) whether or not the date is a price response date from an earnings or guidance disclosure. I calculate the number and percentage of days in each of these categories based on Wells Fargo news releases and the abnormal returns derived from the regression results in Appendix E.

66. Of these 450 days, there are 7 days throughout the Class Period when there are earnings or guidance disclosures. I use this subset of dates as news dates where, as explained above, my objective criteria suggest that there could have been — although not necessarily that there would have been — announcements of unanticipated, material news.⁹² Therefore, out of the 7 examined days within the Class Period, approximately 1.6% (=7/450) of the days have such news releases. In Appendix E, I have also identified 30 dates during the Class Period with abnormal returns which I define to be outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance, which for the purposes of this test are abnormal returns that are statistically significant at or below the 5% level. Therefore, 6.7% (=30/450) of the examined days have abnormal returns that are statistically significant at or below the 5% level. The information is summarized in Exhibit VIII, which shows that out of the 450 examined days in the Class Period, there were 5 days with significant returns and news, and 25 days with significant returns and no news that meets my objective criteria.⁹³ There are 2 news days with a non-significant return, leaving 418 days with insignificant returns and no news.

⁹³ It is expected in an event study where there are limited disclosures that there will be dates with no disclosure but also with an abnormal return with statistical significance at or below 5%. As explained in Hartzmark and Seyhun (2012) at pp. 435-445, observing a significant abnormal return, but no news, is not evidence that the security trades in an inefficient market. In this case, the percentage of abnormal returns that are statistically significant at or below 5% is 6.7% or 30 days (out of 450). However, Wells Fargo disclosed earnings or guidance “news” on only 7 dates or 1.6% of the days, based

67. I first test whether there was a difference between the observed proportions of statistically significant abnormal returns on news days as compared to no-news days. Here, Wells Fargo's common stock price exhibited an abnormal price reaction that is statistically significant at or below the 5% level on 71.4% of news days (5 of 7), compared to just 5.6% of no-news days (25 of 443). Thus, I observe significant price movements on news days over 12 times more frequently than I observe significant movements on no-news days. The difference between these two rates is highly statistically significant with a p-value of less than 0.01% using Fisher's Exact Test.⁹⁴ Thus, with over 99.9% confidence, I can reject the hypothesis that Wells Fargo's stock price reacted no differently on news days (or those dates with expected greater information flow) than on all other days.

68. Using generally accepted statistical methods and assuming there is no link between news and statistically significant returns (i.e., the relationship is randomly determined), I can also say that there is less than 99.9% chance of observing 5 days with abnormal returns that are statistically significant at or below the 5% level when there is news on 7 days.⁹⁵ on the objective criteria discussed above. Thus, due to the combination of (a) the statistical significance of 5% and 30 days with abnormal returns that are statistically significant at or below 5%; (b) the number of days in the Class Period of 450; and (c) the fixed number of potential news dates of 7, by the construction of the empirical test and simple math, a minimum of 23 dates must have no "news" and statistically significant abnormal returns. In other words, I find 30 statistically significant days based on statistical significance of 5%. If all 7 objectively defined news days were statistically significant at or below the 5% level, based on the statistical properties of the market model with 7 such statistically significant abnormal returns, there would still be 23 (30 - 7) days that are statistically significant at or below the 5% level that did not coincide with the news, when news is defined as earnings or guidance disclosure dates.

⁹⁴ Fisher's Exact Test is a statistical significance test used in the analysis of proportions such as the categories discussed above.

⁹⁵ To test whether this hypothesis is a reasonable description of the actual world, I use a generally accepted statistical method that has been accepted by numerous courts, called "bootstrap testing." Using this method, I have created test statistics to determine whether the observed relationships between Wells Fargo significant returns and news are likely to have been generated in a random fashion. If news is not linked to significant returns, then I would not expect there to be a statistically significant

69. Alternatively, I can use the statistical tests to ask and answer the question of what number and percentage of days I would have expected to find matching between news and an abnormal return that is statistically significant at or below the 5% level, if the two were unrelated. Applying these tests, I find that, if the news and the significant abnormal returns were unrelated, I would expect to observe 0.47 days out of the 7 news days when there is a significant abnormal return associated with an identifiable earnings or guidance announcement. Thus, the 5 days I observe is over 10 times the expected number of days if there were no cause-and-effect relationship between stock returns and news.

70. These findings reject the hypothesis that, throughout the Class Period, Wells Fargo stock behaved no differently on news days than on all other days. They allow me to conclude that Wells Fargo-specific information and large price movements of Wells Fargo stock during the Class Period were related and cannot be attributed to random volatility, or to market or sector factors. This clearly provides substantial support for the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

4. Cause and Effect Analysis Examining Autocorrelation

71. I have demonstrated above that Wells Fargo common stock reacted to earnings or guidance disclosures, as expected in an efficient market. Next, I show that there is additional evidence supporting the conclusion that throughout the Class Period Wells Fargo's common stock price rapidly reflected the flow of information. The evidence to support this conclusion comes from the empirical results showing that the daily abnormal returns of Wells Fargo common stock do not exhibit persistent and systematic autocorrelation, which offers further support for my opinion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

72. As described above, autocorrelation is a measure of a statistical property of the time-series of returns of a security. It is used to examine whether prices rapidly adjust relationship that distinguishes those days when there is or is not news from those days when there are or are not significant returns. See Bradley Efron & Robert J. Tibshirani, An Introduction to the Bootstrap (CRC Press LLC, 2d ed.) (1993), 1 ("The bootstrap is a recently developed technique for making certain kinds of statistical inferences.").

to reflect the flow of information by determining whether tomorrow's security price movement can be systematically predicted with a reasonable degree of statistical certainty based solely on the security price movement today (or some period in the past).⁹⁶

73. It is important to emphasize that autocorrelation is a possible indication of market inefficiency only if it is persistent and systematic (meaning, consistently has the same pattern or direction); in other words, it offers exploitable profit-taking opportunities to investors. It is only exploitable if: (a) the autocorrelation remains stable and does not disappear or change direction, which in statistical terms means estimated autocorrelation coefficients are robust and not sensitive to small changes; and (b) the magnitude of the autocorrelation throughout the Class Period (as measured by the single autocorrelation coefficient estimated over the whole Class Period) is at such a level as to compensate an investor for transactions costs. In other words, if autocorrelation (as measured by the single autocorrelation coefficient estimated over the whole Class Period) appears and then remains stable and economically significant then it means the autocorrelation is possibly considered to be generally exploitable. On the other hand, if an autocorrelation coefficient is not stable, then autocorrelation cannot be considered persistent and systematic because the autocorrelation that initially appears either disappears or changes direction in subsequent analysis and thus is not considered to generally be exploitable.⁹⁷ Moreover,

⁹⁶ “Autocorrelation is usually found in time-series data. Economic time series often display a ‘memory’ in that variation is not independent from one period to the next.” Greene, supra note 30. In other words, autocorrelation is the measurement of the relationship between the security return at time t and the return of the same security at some fixed time in the past. First-order autocorrelation would be found when there is a statistically significant relationship between the common stock return today and the common stock return yesterday. Another way of looking at this concept is that if an observer can use the return from yesterday to predict with some level of certainty the return today, there exists autocorrelation. See Lehocky, 220 F.R.D. at 506-507 n.20 (noting that both parties’ experts agreed on the helpfulness of autocorrelation); PolyMedica, 453 F. Supp. 2d at 276-78.

⁹⁷ This is consistent with the Court in the Teva matter that wrote, citing to the plaintiff’s expert, that “the real question is whether the observed autocorrelation is exploitable, meaning that an investor could earn trading profits as a result.” . . . “Autocorrelation that appears and disappears, or changes direction . . . is generally not exploitable because once one determines the proper trading strategy, that strategy may no longer even if autocorrelation (as measured by the single autocorrelation coefficient estimated over the whole Class Period) appears and then remains stable, but the transactions costs (e.g., commissions, bid/ask spreads, normal trading frictions, etc.) exceed the profits from the naïve trading strategy, then the persistent and systematic autocorrelation is not exploitable, and the evidence does not support the conclusion that the security trades in an inefficient market.

74. To evaluate whether there was systematic and persistent autocorrelation over the Class Period, I began by running a linear regression over the 450-day Class Period using each trading day's abnormal return as the dependent variable and the abnormal return from the prior trading day as the independent variable. This equation is specified as:

$$AR_t = \alpha + \beta(AR_{t-1}).^{98}$$

75. From this regression specification, I derive an autocorrelation coefficient (β) of 0.09, representing the measurement of the relationship between the abnormal current (i.e., today) and lagged (i.e., yesterday) returns. This coefficient has a p-value of 8.1%, which is not statistically significant at or below the 5% level. Therefore, using generally accepted statistical inference procedures demonstrates that throughout the Class Period there was no persistent or systematic statistically significant autocorrelation at or below the 5% level in the abnormal returns. This observation is consistent with the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock reacted quickly to the flow of information and traded in an efficient market, which in combination with the news/no-news tests above, offers further substantial support that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

be profitable.” In Re Teva Securities Litigation, 2021 WL 872156 (D.Conn. March 9, 2021) at *16.

⁹⁸ See Appendix D, for a description of the procedure used for the calculation of the daily abnormal returns (AR_t and AR_{t-1}). Daily abnormal returns are calculated and presented in Appendix C and Appendix E.

C. Conclusion Based on the Basket of Factors the Courts Evaluate

76. My empirical analyses in this section show that the disclosure of Wells Fargo-specific news caused rapid and significant movements in the prices of Wells Fargo common stock. These analyses strongly support the conclusion that the market for Wells Fargo common stock was efficient. Moreover, using the empirical results for the evaluation of the seven operational factors in Section V, I have also presented clear support for my conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

77. In summary, when examining the basket of factors typically relied upon by the courts to analyze market efficiency for the purposes of class certification decisions which are also consistent with the fundamental principles of economics and finance that academics rely upon to evaluate market efficiency the substantial evidence strongly supports the conclusion that Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

VII. ABILITY TO CALCULATE DAMAGES ON A CLASS-WIDE BASIS

78. As set forth in the Complaint, Plaintiffs allege that Defendants violated Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act.⁹⁹ As explained below, damages for this claim can be calculated on a class-wide basis using a common methodology well-accepted by courts.¹⁰⁰

A. Description of the Common and Broadly Accepted “Out-Of-Pocket” Damages Methodology

79. The calculation of class-wide damages for a violation of Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act can be done using a common and broadly accepted methodology that is routinely applied and has become a virtual standard in federal securities litigation like this one against Wells Fargo. This class-wide damages methodology is generally referred to as the “out-of-pocket” methodology. Using the out-of-pocket methodology, damages suffered by Class members are measured based on the investors’ inflation losses.

⁹⁹ Complaint, Section XI.

¹⁰⁰ As previously noted, I have not been asked to calculate or opine on the quantum of damages here.

80. To implement the out-of-pocket methodology, which is based on a relatively straightforward, standard, and commonly used formula, inputs are calculated. In the out-of-pocket methodology, the inputs are the daily levels of artificial inflation in the prices for Wells Fargo common stock caused by Defendants’ alleged misrepresentations and/or omissions. Daily levels of artificial inflation are generally calculated either directly or as the difference between the actual prices paid on that day for Wells Fargo common stock and the true or “but-for” values of the security absent the alleged misrepresentations and omissions (i.e., had the truth been disclosed the price would have been the true value). Inflation losses are then calculated based on the artificial inflation on the date the Class member acquired their common stock less the artificial inflation on the date the Class member sold their common stock (or if unsold, based on zero inflation following the Class Period).

81. This common damages methodology and the related inputs are applied on a class-wide basis. In the end, the inputs (i.e., the artificial inflation ribbon) along with the actual trading activity of Class members are used to calculate individual damages in a mechanical and formulaic manner.¹⁰¹

82. Basically, per share inflation losses would equal the difference between the per share artificial inflation when the Class member acquired shares (A) and the per share artificial inflation when the Class member sold shares (S). In other words, inflation losses for Class members would be based on a common formula whereby a Class member’s number of damaged shares (D) would be multiplied by the difference in artificial inflation, or $D \times (A - S)$. Thus, one can think of this out-of-pocket methodology as being represented by a straightforward, standard and commonly-used formula, such as the formula of the slope of a line taught in elementary school algebra; namely $Y = a + bX$. To solve this simple formula for Y , one uses information to calculate a and b , and then simply inputs X into the formula to solve for Y .

B. The Inputs Used in the Out-of-Pocket Methodology Are Common to All Class Members

83. To calculate the inputs for the out-of-pocket methodology or formula, an expert often begins with the same type of event study I used above in Section VI to evaluate the price-related factors. Using the results of the event study along with the disclosures of firm-specific information, daily abnormal returns or price movements are calculated.

84. The daily levels of artificial inflation or the inputs into the out-of-pocket formula are calculated and represented by what economists generally refer to as the “inflation ribbon.” This ribbon represents an estimate of the daily level of artificial inflation in the prices of Wells Fargo common stock caused by the Defendants’ alleged misrepresentations and/or omissions, which are based on the price reactions to disclosures either related to or revealing the alleged misstatements and omissions.

85. The out-of-pocket methodology does not involve any individualized issues.¹⁰² Thus, the above-described inputs (i.e., the inflation ribbon) will be common to all Class members and applied class-wide. In other words, no matter which technique might be chosen at the merits stage of this litigation to construct the inflation ribbon, the techniques used to estimate the true price (and thus calculate artificial inflation) will be common to all putative Class members and will be applied on a class-wide basis.¹⁰³

86. Moreover, in the merits stage when an expert identifies the level of artificial inflation in Wells Fargo common stock attributable to the specific misrepresentations and/or omissions ultimately established by Plaintiffs, this “but-for” price does not depend on, nor does one need to consider, an individual investor’s risk tolerance or expected returns. Rather, it is common to all investors because it measures how the misrepresented information affected Wells Fargo’s common stock price, which is of course the essence of fraud-on-the-market.

¹⁰³ See, e.g., Nicholas I. Crew, Kevin L. Gold and Marnie A. Moore, Federal Securities Acts and Areas of Expert Analysis, Litigation Services Handbook: The Role of the Financial Expert (Wiley, 5th ed. 2012), 24.11-24.14.

87. Calculating actual inputs into the out-of-pocket methodology by parsing (i.e., disaggregating the abnormal stock price movement into portions related and unrelated to the allegations) and scaling over time the changes in the inputs (if these adjustments are even required) likewise are common issues that affect all class members equally. They also are quintessential elements of a loss causation analysis that the Supreme Court’s Halliburton I Opinion determined is a common issue that need not be analyzed at the class certification stage.¹⁰⁴

C. Commonly Used and Widely Accepted Techniques Used to Account for Confounding Information and Potential Changes Over Time

88. The issue of whether and how much a particular price reaction is caused by the revelation of the truth concerning a particular (as opposed to confounding) piece of information is a quintessential loss causation inquiry because it is focused on the causal relationship between the misstatements and/or omissions and the price decline. Should parsing or scaling be necessary when a loss causation or damages report is submitted in this matter, there are commonly used and widely accepted techniques to account for confounding information (i.e., parsing) and potential changes in inflation over time (i.e., scaling).

89. Once discovery is complete and, eventually, a determination of liability made by the finder of fact, to the extent it is even appropriate, disaggregating confounding information would be based on a disclosure-specific inquiry that would occur, at the earliest, based on a full factual record.

90. Again, assuming parsing or scaling were appropriate, there are many techniques that could be used to estimate the portion of the price reaction due to the revelation of the truth and how that price response might change over time. These include, among others: the analysis of intraday pricing (if disclosures are made at different times), analysis of market and media commentary, examination of the elements that cause changes in actual or estimated earnings-per share or EBITDA (by individual analysts, the company or a consensus of analysts), or analysis of detailed accounting and company information, such as a breakdown of revenues and earnings for different divisions, businesses, types of customers, facilities, geographic locations, etc. In addition, material produced in discovery could shed light on the underlying reasons for the disclosures (if such reasons were misstated or omitted), and other expert testimony related to liability issues could also provide a basis for disaggregation.

91. Most critically, whatever the outcome as to the parsing and scaling, the inputs will be plugged into a common inflation ribbon, which will be applied class-wide to calculate individual damages as described in the common damages methodology.

VIII. CONCLUSIONS

92. Based on the foregoing, my conclusions are as follows:

- i. Throughout the Class Period, Wells Fargo common stock traded in an efficient market.
- ii. The calculation of damages for violations of Section 10(b) (and SEC Rule 10b-5) of the Exchange Act in this matter may be computed on a class-wide basis using common methodologies.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED THIS THIRD DAY OF OCTOBER 2022

Michael L. Hartzmark, Ph.D.

Note:

Institutions with positive holdings of Wells Fargo & Company. common stock for quarters during the Class Period (6/30/2018 - 12/31/2019). During the Class Period, two entities named "Cypress Capital Management, LLC" held shares in Wells Fargo. I added suffixes of "-1" and "-2" to the institution names to differentiate them because S&P Capital IQ shows different addresses for these two

Notes:

[A] Based on bootstrap results of 100,000 runs of simultaneously pulling dates from two buckets each containing 450 dates. Each run pulls a date from each of the two buckets. In Bucket 1 there are 7 "News" days and 443 "No-News" days, while in Bucket 2 there are 30 days with abnormal returns statistically significant at 5% level and 420 days with abnormal returns not statistically significant at 5% level.

[B] "News" date is defined as days with earnings or guidance release. News released after 4 pm based on the time stamps from Business Wire or SEC Filings is matched with the next trading day's stock return. The response date of the news dates are: 7/13/2018, 10/12/2018, 1/15/2019, 4/12/2019, 7/16/2019, 10/15/2019, and 1/14/2020.

[13] For the Wells Fargo chronology, I compiled lists of SEC filings, analyst reports, and news articles. I compiled the list of all of Wells Fargo SEC filings from May 30, 2018 to March 12, 2020 from the SEC website. The list of analyst reports is based on reports available from the Refinitiv and Capital IQ electronic databases. For news articles contained in the chronology, I searched Factiva. Due to the extensive media coverage, I include in the chronology only stories for the following sources obtained from Factiva using the company code "Wells Fargo & Company": Barron's – All sources; Business Wire – All sources; Dow Jones Newswires- All sources; Reuters – All sources; The New York Times – All sources; The Wall Street Journal – All sources; and Theflyonthewall.com. To eliminate duplicate stories, a news story was considered a duplicate and eliminated if it had exactly the same date, timestamp, headline, news source, and lead paragraph as another news story.

Event Study Procedure

A. The Market Model and Control Period Used for the Event Study

1. For the event study analysis typically utilized to evaluate Cammer Factor V, I employ a standard regression procedure referred to as the “market model.” The market model applies generally-accepted and peer-reviewed econometric methods to estimate a predicted return of Wells Fargo common stock and quantify the typical variation of returns of Wells Fargo common stock. During the Class Period, on each trading day (i.e., a date when the U.S. stock market is open for the buying and selling of common stock), the predicted return is then compared to the actual return to determine (using the typical variation estimated from the market model) whether the actual return is outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance.

2. The market model regression I have employed includes as “explanatory variables” the general market returns and the returns to two industry indexes. They are called explanatory variables because they are used to explain and account for the outside influences on the variation in the daily returns to Wells Fargo common stock. The specification of this market model can be written as:

$$R_t = \alpha + \beta_1(R_{mt}) + \beta_2(\text{BROAD INDUSTRY}_t) + \beta_3(\text{FOCUSED INDUSTRY}_t) + \varepsilon_t,$$

where t represents each trading day.¹

¹ This equation is a time-series where the variables are measured at comparable times. In this case, the time interval is at the daily close of trading. Because day t is a date on which the U.S. stock market is open for the buying and selling of common stock (i.e., a trading day), weekends, holidays and certain other dates will be excluded and unless stated otherwise, “day” refers to a trading day.

For example, the number of trading days per annum and per month for the NYSE is found at: https://www.nyse.com/publicdocs/Trading_Days.pdf. For examples of holidays when the NYSE is closed, see <https://www.nyse.com/markets/hours-calendars>.

In this equation, R_t is the daily percentage return of Wells Fargo common stock on day t , $R_{m,t}$ is a proxy for the daily market return on day t , and the $INDUSTRY_t$ terms are proxies for the daily industry returns on day t .²

3. I utilize daily data measuring these three explanatory variables over a specified interval (i.e., the “Control Period”) and apply ordinary least squares regression procedures to estimate the parameters of the regression (namely α , β_1 , β_2 , β_3 and the standard error of the regression).³ In regression analysis, and thus the standard event study analysis, control periods are constructed for a specified number of days to quantitatively represent a typical distribution of returns. In my event study, to estimate the predicted return and return variation of Wells Fargo common stock, I use my academic-based standard 120 days as a Control Period. Specifically, for each day where I am estimating a predicted return and return variation, (I refer to this as day t_0), I use the prior 120 days (i.e., days t_{-120} through t_{-1}) as the Control Period.

² For the general market index, I use the commonly-utilized S&P 500 Total Return Index (Bloomberg identifier SPTR), which Wells Fargo refers to in its Annual Reports when comparing its stock performance to the movements of the general market (2018 Annual Report at p. 283; 2019 Annual Report at p. 259; 2020 and Annual Report at p. 243). To account for industry influences, I utilize a broad-based industry index (“BROAD INDUSTRY” index) and a more focused industry index (“FOCUSED INDUSTRY” index). For the BROAD INDUSTRY index, I use the S&P 500 Financial Sector Total Return Index (Bloomberg identifier SPTRFINL). For the FOCUSED INDUSTRY index, I use the S&P 500 Banks Total Return Index (Bloomberg identifier SPTR5BNK). I remove Wells Fargo’s contribution to these market and industry indexes using daily weights obtained from Bloomberg.

Both industry indexes are measured net of the general market index return. To net the market return, I regress the industry return on the market return over 120 days prior to the day before the Class Period to the end of the Class Period (i.e., December 4, 2017 to March 12, 2020) and use the obtained residual return (i.e., the respective industry returns netting out market effects) as the industry returns in my market models for Wells Fargo.

³ The control period is also referred to as the estimation period. “There are essentially four choices for the estimation period: before the event window, during the window, after the window, and around the window. The majority of events studies use an estimation period before the event.” Glenn V. Henderson, Jr., Problems and Solutions in Conducting Event Studies, 57 J. of Risk and Ins. 282, 291 (June 1990).

4. In the Class Period there are 450 returns on days when the U.S. stock market is open for the buying and selling of Wells Fargo common stock. I process 450 market model regressions to separately evaluate the return on each of these days.⁴ In other words, I construct 450 “rolling regressions,” each of which uses the return records for prior 120 days, and separately estimate a set of parameters (namely α , β_1 , β_2 and β_3 and the standard error of the regression) for each day t_0 throughout the Class Period.⁵

B. Using Dummy Variables to Account and Adjust for Atypical Returns During a Control Period

5. Because a control period is meant to represent a typical return distribution, along with the market and industry indexes, I include in the market model what are referred to as “dummy variables”⁶ to account and adjust for possible atypical variation in the daily returns to Wells Fargo common stock from disclosures of important firm-specific information on any specified day during each of the Control Periods. I include a dummy variable when there is a release of important Wells Fargo-specific information, because these “Dummy Dates” could possibly have atypical returns in reaction to such information. Thus, should that single Dummy Date have a large, atypical abnormal return caused not by chance, but by Wells Fargo’s disclosure of material, unanticipated firm-specific information, it could change the mix of information in the market that is important to investors and could potentially bias the regression parameters estimated from the market model. The use of dummy variables, or simply excluding anomalous dates or periods, is a

⁴ I estimate an additional regression for the day prior to the start of the Class Period, which is used in the autocorrelation analysis.

widely used and generally accepted econometric technique employed in the academic finance literature.⁷ For example, Professor Carol Alexander states that “one might consider creating a dummy [variable] to model the timing of important news announcements... [or] whenever the data period covers ... a temporary shift due to an extreme market movement.”⁸ Prof. Alexander adds, “If dummies are omitted there will be residual problems that lead to inefficient parameter estimates on the real explanatory variables.”⁹ It is also consistent with methods courts have relied upon to certify securities classes.¹⁰

6. Specifically, I use a dummy variable on 15 Dummy Dates. These are days that fall within the 450 Control Periods and are the days on which Wells Fargo’s price would be expected to be impacted by either a corrective disclosure alleged in the Complaint or a date on which the Company announced earnings, announced preliminary earnings results, or provided new or updated guidance.¹¹

C. Using the Parameters to Estimate Abnormal Returns

7. As discussed above, I estimate 450 sets of regression coefficients after accounting and adjusting for outside influences and possible atypical disclosures. I then use the coefficients of these 450 regressions to calculate 450 predicted and abnormal daily returns. For each day t_0 , I use the estimated set of coefficients (namely α , β_1 , β_2 and β_3), along with the actual measures of the three index returns – R_{mt_0} , BROAD INDUSTRY t_0 , and FOCUSED INDUSTRY t_0 – to calculate the predicted return for Wells Fargo common stock for day t_0 . I then subtract this predicted return from the actual return of Well Fargo common stock on day t_0 to calculate the “abnormal return” on day t_0 . This abnormal return is the firm-specific return of Wells Fargo common stock that is not explained by outside influences.

D. Using the Standard Error of the Regression to Calculate the Probability of Observing the Abnormal Return Outside of the Bounds of What Would be Expected by Chance

8. The ε_t or the residual term on day t in the market model regression is the measure of the portion of the return of Wells Fargo common stock on that day that is not

The 15 Dummy Dates are: 1/12/2018; 4/13/2018; 5/7/2018; 7/13/2018; 10/12/2018; 1/15/2019; 4/12/2019; 7/16/2019; 10/15/2019; 1/14/2020; 3/5/2020; 3/6/2020; 3/9/2020; 3/10/2020; and 3/11/2020. Note that certain Dummy Dates occur prior to the start of the Class Period because the Control Periods used for calculating abnormal returns for the first 120 days of the Class Period cover days prior to the Class Period. In addition, the last alleged corrective disclosure date, 3/12/2020, is not a Dummy Date because it does not fall within any of the Control Periods.

explained by outside influences (as captured by market and industry variables) or possible atypical disclosures (as captured by Dummy Dates). All the daily ε_t terms from a Control Period are used to calculate a variance and standard deviation, otherwise known as the residual variance and standard error of the regression, respectively. As discussed above, I also estimate 450 standard errors for 450 regressions. For each of the 450 regressions, the standard errors are used to calculate t-statistics and the probabilities of observing each t-statistic (referred to as the “p-value”). The p-value is the likelihood of observing the abnormal return being outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance or due to random volatility alone, which is calculated for each date during the Class Period.

9. To summarize, for each date in the Class Period, I estimate a market model which allows me to calculate the abnormal return and the standard error of the regression. I then use these measures to calculate the probability of observing whether that abnormal return is extraordinarily large (positive) or small (negative). Using this procedure, I determine whether the magnitude of the actual return I observe on each day of the Class Period is outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance.

E. Example Evaluating Wells Fargo Return Observed on September 27, 2019

10. For example, as shown in Appendix E, on September 27, 2019, I use a Control Period from April 8, 2019 to September 26, 2019 and, because there are earnings announcements during this period, I include April 12, 2019 and July 16, 2019 as Dummy Dates. Using this 120-day Control Period, I estimate the regression parameters: $\alpha=0.00$, $\beta_1=1.07$, $\beta_2=0.65$, and $\beta_3=0.42$. Using these coefficients and actual index returns on September 27, 2019, I calculate the predicted return for Wells Fargo common stock on September 27, 2019 to be 0.39%. Because the actual return is 3.77%, this results in an abnormal return of 3.38% ($=3.77\% - 0.39\%$). The regression also estimates a standard error of 0.007, which allows me to calculate a t-statistic of 4.84 ($=3.38\% / 0.007$) and a p-value of 0.00. In other words, for September 27, 2019, I can reject the null hypothesis of the return to Wells Fargo common stock of 3.77% being no different from the market model predicted return with virtual certainty, as it is far outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance, i.e., under the null hypothesis, there is virtually zero chance of observing this return.

[7] Daily industry return is the daily return for the S&P 500 Financial Sector Total Return Index, after removing the effect of Wells Fargo from the index return based on Wells Fargo's daily weight in the index. Source: Bloomberg. The Excess INDUSTRY_t returns are used to account for industry-wide effects in the market model, after removing the effect of market returns. The formula for removing the effect of market returns from the industry return is $\{\text{industry return} - (\text{intercept} + \text{beta} * \text{market return})\}$. The intercept (-0.0004) and beta (1.0775) are estimated by regressing daily industry returns on market returns over the period 12/4/2017 to 3/12/2020.

[8] Daily industry return is the daily return for the S&P 500 Banks Total Return Index, after removing the effect of Wells Fargo from the index return based on Wells Fargo's daily weight in the index. Source: Bloomberg. The Excess INDUSTRY_t returns are used to account for industry-wide effects in the market model, after removing the effect of market returns. The formula for removing the effect of market returns from the industry return is $\{\text{industry return} - (\text{intercept} + \text{beta} * \text{market return})\}$. The intercept (-0.0005) and beta (1.1493) are estimated by regressing daily industry returns on market returns over the period 12/4/2017 to 3/12/2020.

[9] - [12] and [15] The market model regressions include dummy variables. The dates for which dummy variables are included are: 1/12/2018, 4/13/2018, 5/7/2018, 7/13/2018, 10/12/2018, 1/15/2019, 4/12/2019, 7/16/2019, 10/15/2019, 1/14/2020, 3/5/2020, 3/6/2020, 3/9/2020, 3/10/2020, and 3/11/2020. Market for each day is estimated over the prior 120 trading days.

[9] Intercept from a market model regression estimated over the prior 120 trading days.

[10] Coefficient for the market return from a market model regression estimated over the prior 120 trading days.

[11] Coefficient for the excess industry return in [7] from a market model regression estimated over the prior 120 trading days.

[12] Coefficient for the excess industry return in [8] from a market model regression estimated over the prior 120 trading days.

[13] = $[9] + \{[10] \times [6]\} + \{[11] \times [7]\} + \{[12] \times [8]\}$.

[14] = $[5] - [13]$.

[15] Root MSE of a market model estimated over the prior 120 trading days.

[16] = $[14] / [15]$.
